

JOYFUL YOUTHS
INVADE LAGOONYoung Republicans Have a Comic Outing.

SOME REALLY FUNNY SPORTS

TRAIN MIXES IN THE PRO-GRAMME.

THE anti-Kearns rally out at Lagoon yesterday, under the title of an excursion by the Young Men's Republican club, was what is commonly designated as a "peach." It was attended by a crowd large enough to raise considerable dust.

The young men were well represented. There was Uncle Willie Driver, president of the Ogden city council; "Pap" Beasley, age unknown, who played in the orchestra; Patriarch Samuel W. Richards, who took his family on an outing in commemoration of his seventy-eighth birthday; Grandpa Ensign, who just joined the boys, and other well known urchins. The older members of the party, all except Dana Smith, Chris B. Diehl, Jack Sharp and Joe Nyström, were too busy receiving Elks at the Short Line depot to participate in the supreme enjoyment. Then there was Ben Heywood, trying to keep peace, and "Reddy" Stuart of Sandy, who had a vote in the last legislature, Joe Lippman, who was "getting in touch," Johnny Axton, strolling through the grounds whistling "I Want to Be a Military Man." Besides these, if there was a Kearns man present, he didn't whimper.

About the first thing that happened was a 100-yard dash, won by L. Y. Thatcher. The fifty-yard run was won by Henry Gardner. Judge Bagley of Ogden won the distinction of homeliest gentleman, and Nellie Chandler of North Ogden was undoubtedly the largest woman present. The sack race went to Bernice Grant, the greased pig was captured by Theodore Taylor. W. H. Brockhoff reached the top of the greased pole, and Rubie Riley won the potato race.

Starting Baseball.

These events concluded, the baseball game between the Salt Lake city council and Ogden's council came off. There was a dispute between Butch Lowry and Bill Glasman as to who would umpire. Bill won, but Salt Lake put in Steve Love to assist. Love had very little to say about it, and after four innings, the crowd having quit, the players quit also. Ogden won by a score of eight to two.

A band under the lucern patch kept playing "There'll Be a Hot Time in Old Town Tonight," without any reference to Lagoon, and the people took it as a hint to get back to the city, whereupon the committee got sore and didn't want to pay for music. The band changed, finally, to "Mother Was a Lady" and "She May Have Seen Better Days," which put the young men in better mood for the evening.

It was along towards 9 o'clock when the programme got started off in the convention. It commenced with a selection by the only quartette which in the grounds and therefore the winner of the contest. It was headed by Chaplain John Axton.

Then President Joe McKnight of the club announced that Governor Wells had missed a train or something at Soda Springs and was not present, but Acting Governor Hammond would speak.

Why Wells Wasn't There.

The crowd listened patiently to Mr. Hammond, who also explained that the governor and his train didn't connect, and that the young men would be an important factor in the next campaign. At this juncture, a quartette in the distance and part of the audience made a rush for the exits, while Chairman McKnight vainly cried for order.

The speech was short. At its conclusion Fred Graham sang "Under the Shade of the Palm."

Congressman George Sutherland was next introduced, but the crowd had gone to talking about the governor's speech and the chairman shouted and gesticulated wildly before the congressman was able to proceed. Mr. Sutherland said he believed in the young man in politics. He had a story about office holding. Only two classes could aspire to political distinction, he declared, the first being those who are rich enough to win and the other, those who are poor enough to hold office. He believed it possible for people to be as honest in politics as in any other business.

"Some of our Democratic friends say that trouble is brewing in the Republican party and profess to believe that they will be the beneficiaries of it," continued Mr. Sutherland. "Only recently they have said that this is the case. The Democratic party lies about us. Let me say that if there are any quarrels in the Republican party, they will be settled in the family circle and when the Republican convention settles upon the principles of the Republican party in this state and makes its nominations, every true Republican will know what to do."

Sutherland Pleases Lowry.

"That's the stuff, George," cried Butch Lowry, and the crowd yelled. A duel by Mr. Ramsey and Miss Jepperson of Provo was next introduced. Dennis C. Elchorn was next introduced. Dennis said the talk about trouble in the ranks was imaginary and went on to talk about air-ships, wireless telegraphy, submarine navigation and other benefits of Republican rule. He said the time was coming when an American citizen would be protected in any land.

Another train whistled at this point and some more of the crowd left, despite the chairman's cries for quiet. Mr. Elchorn said Roosevelt would be nominated for 1904 and sat down. John James sang "Good-bye, Dolly Gray" and, for an encore, "The Old Brigade."

There was a general outflux when James H. Anderson arose to speak and failed to make good. He talked about two years ago and Roosevelt and McKinley, and told what the voters were ready to do, from a Republican standpoint, while the crowd grunted.

George M. Hanson of Ogden, late candidate for the postoffice, got off a few fine things that were not heard, as the train had pulled in and was getting ready to pull out.

Mr. Lizzie Thomas Edward sang Ardit's "Kiss Waltz" and the programme was at an end. The prize for the most beautiful Republican girl was awarded to Lena Strack of 436 South First West street.

Dan Harrington was present. Reed Smoot wasn't.

CYANIDE MILLS BURNED.

Denver, Aug. 9.—A special to the News from Cripple Creek, Colo., says the New Cyanide mill was totally destroyed by fire today. The plant cost $200,000. The insurance was small.

GROSVENOR RENOMINATED.

Lancaster, O., Aug. 9.—Charles H. Grosvenor was unanimously nominated for congress today by the Eleventh district Republican convention.

WAS THIS THE REASON?

Or, Why Weren't They There?

TOOLEE BANDIT
WAS BAD MANFamous Cattle Thief Who, Though
Dead, Still Killed Others.

WEIRD EARLY DAY TALE

DETAILS OF A CRIMINAL CHASE
IN YEARS AGONE.

REMINISCENT of the days when the life of a police officer was strenuous in this state, Captain W. G. Phillips, night watchman at the Z. C. M. L., recalled a story very similar to the death of the notorious outlaw bandit, Harry Tracy, who ended his career of crime by suicide.

"It was over twenty years ago," said Captain Phillips, the other night, after he had read the story of weird ending of the life of the bandit, "that a warrant was sent into this city to the United States marshal for the arrest of a famous cattle thief who had operated extensively in Tooele county. Accounts of his depredations had reached the city long before, but citizens of that county were practically powerless to put a stop to the thief. He was sent to the United States marshal for the territory, and to him the warrant for the arrest of the robber was sent. The marshal was instructed to return the bandit, a man by the name of Dawse, to this city, dead or alive. The commission could not have been placed in better hands, although the brave captain met his death in his efforts to obey his orders."

No Bloodhounds Needed.

"The marshal at once proceeded to Tooele county, where he organized a posse and started in pursuit of the fugitive. Bloodhounds were not used for the reason that Dawse so bold in his operations that he made no effort to conceal himself and is said to have boasted repeatedly that he would never be taken. Following the trail that had been left by the man and pointed out by the people living along the road, the posse soon came in sight of the desperado.

"He at once realized that he was the object of search of the posse and a desperate fight ensued. He concealed himself behind the brush and opened fire. The posse was returned by the posse, but the outlaw succeeded in killing Captain Story and another of the posse. At last a ball fired by one of the members of the posse was true to its aim and the firing in the brush ceased abruptly. Men at once hastened into the brush in search of the body of the bandit.

"The man was soon found lying dead with his body almost riddled with bullets. But he had anticipated the result of the uneven battle and had planned that his power of destruction would not end when he was shot. So enthusiastic were the members of the posse over the death of the desperado, and imagining nothing of the horrible plan he had conceived, that they at once seized the body, intending to take it back to town.

A Deadly Trap.

"Two revolvers were seen sticking from his hip pockets and two men took the weapons from their scabbards. They had hardly touched the weapons before both exploded, killing both men instantly. Upon investigation the posse was found that Dawse had tied a buckskin string to the trigger of each revolver and tied the other end of the strings to his trousers. On removing the weapons they were at once cocked by the strings by the force of the explosion. He had succeeded in taking the life of two men even after he himself had been killed.

Captain Phillips was a police officer in this city at the time. The story was not widely circulated at the time because crimes were not given the publicity that they now receive, but numbers of the older citizens distinctly recall the horrible affair.

GODDARD TESTIMONIAL.

Programme Arranged For Tomorrow

Night's Affair.

The committee having in charge the testimonial to H. S. Goddard tomorrow night to the Salt Lake city orchestra, which is certainly one of the finest ever arranged for a concert in that historic old building. Mr. Goddard, it is to be seen, is to be heard in several of his great numbers, including the "Toreador" song and "Hosanna." It is such a programme, all the way through, as should attract all lovers of music, and visitors to the city will have no better opportunity of hearing Salt Lake's talent than that offered tomorrow night. The programme is:

"Hall, Bright, Abode" from "Tannhauser" Wagner

"The Heart's Springtime" Dole

Grand Overture "St. Cecilia" Gounod

"Toreador" Song ("Carmen") Bizet

(Band accompaniment)

Mr. H. S. Goddard.

"The Image of the Rose" Relchardt

Madam Swenson, Lerner and Davies

"Pilgrim's Chorus" from "Tannhauser" Wagner

"Sixtette" from "Lucia" Donizetti

Rela's Military Band.

(a) "Don Catali" Verdi

Miss Annette Berkelio

(a) "Grand Old Ocean" Shattuck

(a) "Southern Melody" Davies

Male Quartette—Ashworth, Robinson, Sauter, Graham

"Friends" from "The Jolly Musketier" Edwards

(Male chorus accompaniment)

Mr. H. S. Goddard.

"Polonaise" from "Mignon" Thomas

Miss Luella Ferris

Andantino, "To My Wife" Lemare

(By special request)

Grand Overture ("Bohemian Girl") Balfe

Heid's Military Band.

"Hosanna" Mr. H. S. Goddard.

"Damasus March" Costa

Tabachnick Choir.

UTAH'S ICE CAVE.

A Natural Deposit Discovered Near Annabella.

(Special to The Herald.)

Richfield, Aug. 8.—A curiosity and a cause for considerable speculation exists in a little canyon or gorge on the north side of Monroe mountain, just above the Lemuel Thompson ranch, near Annabella. Mr. Thompson had often noticed that snow and ice had remained in that place until late in the season, but in examining the place carefully a short time ago, with a view of increasing his water supply, he discovered that there has been an accumulation of the ice for several years past.

By means of ladders, indicated by dust and dirt blown upon the snow when it first began to solidify after each winter fall, he finds that the ice has been there constantly for at least ten years. The body is about six feet thick, several yards wide and known to be several hundred yards long, though just what the length is uncertain, as the upper end is covered with alluvial matter. It is in a shaded gulch, where the sun seldom strikes it, and until some season when there should be no snowfall, will probably go on accumulating its layers of ice.

BEET AND TOMATO PEOPLE.

Unique Celebration at Glenwood
Park.

Yesterday was "Beet and Tomato day" at Glenwood, where the employees of the Ogden Sugar company and of the Utah Canning company, with their families, made merry during the afternoon and evening. The term employee was not construed to mean simply a factory hand, but included growers of the crop, as well as others who in any way assist in preparing the products put out by the two great manufacturing concerns, as well as stockholders and officers.

A programme of sports and athletic contests took place during the afternoon, together with music and dancing. Fully 4,000 people were in attendance.

Ogden church Announcements.

Church of the Good Shepherd.—Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.; morning prayer and sermon, 11. It is expected that the Rev. F. W. Norris of Brooklyn, N. Y., will preach.

First Presbyterian Church.—Morning service at 11; Sunday school at 12:15. No evening service. You are invited.

Ogden Briefs.

Willard Hanger is in Ogden from Salt Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lassooff have removed from Ogden to San Francisco.

Officer Meisner yesterday arrested James T. Alvers, a deserter from the Mare Island navy yard, California.

Willie Bannigan, youngest son of T. F. Bannigan, suffered a broken arm yesterday morning, by a fall from a horse.

V. N. Marshall, formerly with the faculty of the Utah state school for the deaf, came in yesterday from California, and will visit friends here for a few days.

Mrs. Blanche Davenport Laffer of Greenville, Pa., arrived yesterday in Ogden, to visit her brother, J. E. Davenport. Mrs. Laffer came this far in company with E. S. Orris, grand treasurer of the Elks, who is her brother-in-law.

Mrs. Lindsay was released on bonds of $100 yesterday, and will go free until called up for hearing before the second district court on charges of polygamy. C. H. Brainerd, named in the complaint as the second husband, furnished the bond.

An alarm of fire was sent in last night by parties who saw smoke issuing from the warehouse of the Boyle Furniture company. It proved, however, that the smoke came from a burning of the furniture company employees.

Rev. Samuel Unsworth of Reno, Nev., will read the Episcopal burial service at the funeral of Miss Lucie Horing this morning at the home of Mrs. Kate S. Hilliard. Mr. Appley of Lehi, an intimate friend and co-educator, will speak of the character of the deceased, and Mr. Jones of her socialist work.

The services will be under the auspices of the socialists. The casket will remain closed, in accordance with the wishes of her friends.

How I Cure Weak, Puny Men

If there is a spark of vitality in the veins of a weak, puny man, I can fan it into a flame and produce a physical giant.

This refers to men who ought to be strong and have lost their physical strength by oversteering the laws of nature.

Any man who has ever been strong can be again. Age is no barrier. I deal in vitality, and I can give it to a man of 80 as well as one of 20.

The energy of your body is Electricity—that is what makes you go; just as an engine goes. When you run down I can renew your power and set your body going again.

Give me a man of 50 feeling old and worn out, with pains in his back and joints. I can pump a stream of Electricity into his body for a few hours every night and soon he will feel as strong and light-hearted as he did at 20.

Your Belt cured me of Rheumatism in a very short time." HORACE BECKWITH, Walton, Wyo.

Give me a man (or woman) for that matter who has been sick and suffering for years, and has taken medicine until the system is all run down and debilitated, the stomach unable to digest the food and the nerves shattered. My Electric Belt will give new life to every organ, drive out disease, and restore health.

"My Electric Belt has fixed me up all right." E. J. DURAND, Pocatello, Idaho.

I sometimes wonder how people can be skeptical as to the power of my Belt to cure them, when they know that their trouble is a want of sufficient vitality in some part of the body, and it will take a sensible man only a minute to see that the vitality of the body is electricity. So, get your money's worth, and give it, and you are cured. My patients are people who have made a study of their own cases. When they do that they appreciate my remedy.

Your Belt cured me of Lame Back in a very short time," writes BERNARD SMITH, Cheyenne, Wyo.

I could fill this paper with testimonials from honest people. If you will call or write I will give you names of people all about you whom I have cured.

Every day I take in exchange old belts of cheap makes which have failed to please or lost their power or give no current, or if they have, burned or blistered. All these defects I have overcome in mine, and I take the others in trade to prove it.

If you have an old belt of another make which has failed to please you, bring it in as part payment.

I have a book which will inspire a man or woman who wants health and strength. I will send it free, sealed, upon request if you will inclose this ad. CAUTION. Beware of medicine peddlers offering "Electric Belts Free" and the Professor with his cheap Belt. This offer is only a trick to rob a package of medicines upon you C. O. D. Write to me for an explanation of the trick.
